The Public lands owned by all of us jointly, should be managed by science, not emotion. The on the ground, natural resource professionals should call the shots. The Foresters, Biologists, Soil Scientists, Professional Loggers, and other resource professionals should form management plans by agreement, with public input considered.

There is a strong argument to be made that ownership of land by the Federal government is unconstitutional. With this in mind, every effort should be made to make the forest ecosystem healthy, well managed, and productive. In nearly all cases I've been involved with, sound forest management is complimentary to good wildlife management, proper soil conservation, and local economics.

Thanks , Pete Tracy
