You guys must be nuts! No, clearcutting giant tracts of forest is bad, but I don't see that happening. We are no longer in the old days where nature did its own thing, renewing the forest every now and then by burning off the mountain top. We need to keep the forest clutter under control. If we eliminate cutting/selling trees, there won't be money to pay for the clutter removal. That is just STUPID!

How about MANAGING the forests so everybody can use them and they're kept to where we aren't likely to have GIANT forest fires from lack of funds (generated funds and not OTHER TAXES) to keep the forests good for all?
